Q3 - We asked what makes a good Parent Council

"Transparency and updates on progress being made."

"Good communication with parents and working with the school for the well-being of the children"

"Acting on behalf of other parents in the interest of wellbeing of the kids at school."

"Effective liaison between school & parents"

"One that ultimately represents the views of parents and children alike, an independent challenge body, not an extension of the school itself."

"A council that can both support and challenge the school, challenge the council to make improvements and raise funds"

"Listening to the parents and working with the school to work through any concerns."

"Supporting the school to deliver high quality education and ensuring clear communication between school and home."
